To Whom It May Concern

The journal “Oceanography: Open Access” has been recently launched to serve as a platform for scientists to contribute their complete and reliable source of information on the discoveries and current developments in all areas related to the “Science of the Sea”. It is very rewarding to see that world class scientists working in different fields of research in marine sciences and related subjects have supported this project and accepted to be members of the editorial board. The credibility of this project can be also witnessed by the number of the manuscripts of excellent quality submitted for publication to this journal, and with the efficient process of reviewing and editing, some of which have already been published.

So, I am very confident that “Oceanography: Open Access” will be very successful as a tool for the scientific community to disseminate its most recent knowledge and know-how without any traditional barriers. As an Executive Editor, I wish to affirm that the editorial board members and the journal staff have worked very hard for the journal to establish its high professional standing and thereby recommending this journal to be indexed in indexing platforms.
