RECOMMENDATION LETTER

Herewith, I confirm that Biochemistry & Pharmacology Open Access Journal is an Pharmaceutical Sciences Journals from the OMICS Group dealing with printing and publishing papers that includes a generously range of fields connected with fundamental, experimental and clinical aspects of Biochemistry and Pharmacology as core biomedical disciplines. As such Biochemistry & Pharmacology Open Access is becoming a open platform for confronting ideas and research results without any restriction.

The journal select, through a high quality review process, original articles, review articles, case reports, short communications, in all areas of the above mentioned field making them freely available through online in a short time interval.

A very professional team of editors are managing the hole process of submission, review, revise, and publish.

The scientific content of the journal become more and more valuable and important by this design of a fair and unobstructed publishing policy.

Considering all this qualities, so promptly consolidated, I strongly recommend this journal to be indexed in PubMed.
