Ancient Egyptian Medicine

Ancient Kemetic (Egyptian) medicine was incredibly advanced. The Ancient Kemetic People were probably the first people in the world to have based their knowledge off of careful observations, as well as trial and error. By careful observation, early doctors or physicians’ priests of Ancient Kemet began healing practices that were world renowned. There was a medical system that was developed over three thousand years and gave much toward the advancement of medical science worldwide, and any monarch or noble to have an Egyptian physician in their employ was a mark of high status. There was no exact separation of physician, priest and magician in Ancient Kemet that we think of today. Many times there was crossover from one “specialty” into that of another. This lecture will focus on surgery, surgical tools, veterinary, contraception, magic as a medical tool and herbal medicine about three thousand years ago in the era of Ancient Egypt. This will specially stress on pyramids builder way of preventive medicine as well.

Biography

Nabil Mohie Abdel–Hamid is a Professor of Cancer Biology and Head of Department of Biochemistry, ex-Dean and Founder of Pharmacy College, Kafrelsheikh University, Egypt. He is the member of Higher Consulting Organization of Egyptian Scientists Council. He is the Deputy Director of Egyptian Association of Cancer Research. He is the Head of Drug Manufacturing Committee, Arab Union of Rights of Intellectual Property, and Arab League. He is a Member in The Arab Evaluators for Scientific Degree Promotions and Egyptian Evaluators for Scientific Degree Promotions. His research interest is Cancer Biology. He is a Principal Instructor of Hepatocellular Carcinoma Research Programs. His research goals are early detection and new trends in management of hepatocellular carcinoma, including chemo and radio sensitization to cancer therapy. He is the Editor in Chief for American Journal of Cancer Prevention, USA and Archives in Cancer Research, Spain. He is an Editorial Board Member for 20 International Journals. He published 46 international publications and 6 books.

nabilmohie@yahoo.com