Alopecia-polyrevitalization cocktails for alopecia used alone or in combined treatment

Philippe Hamida-Pisal1,2
1University Bordeaux II, France
2Kings College London, UK

Alopecia can have a significant impact on a person’s life. The author summarizes the use and effects of mesotherapy on alopecia. Alopecia is partial or total hair loss. Hair is very important across cultures and in some religions. It can denote strength, success and sex appeal, so it can have a serious impact if a person starts losing patches of hair. There are many different types that are scarring and non-scarring. For example, the autoimmune disease alopecia areata is termed as non-scarring, as the hair follicle bulb is intact. Alopecia areata has subgroup classifications: Totalis, the loss of hair on the head, Universalis, total loss of all head and body hair and Barbae, patchy loss of hair from the beard. Alopecia areata affects men, women and children, all ethnicities and can happen at any age. The mesotherapy treatment focalizes on androgenic alopecia and will explain how the polyrevitalization cocktails are effective.

Ayurveda perspective in the management of psoriasis

Gaurang Joshi
Atharva Multi Specialty Ayurveda Hospital and Research Center, India

Skin diseases are on its top 10 list of work-related diseases in the US and published figures for the prevalence of skin diseases in developing countries range from 20 to 80%. It causing distress to the patient: Disfigurement, disability, reduction in quality of life, the relative economic cost to families of treating even trivial skin complaints and even distress to physician: Description in classics extensive and scattered, screening the skin for a wide range of illnesses, treatment options multiple yet confusing. It is important to know about Ayurveda and the description of skin disease in Ayurveda specially Psoriasis. As Ayurveda is now becoming as world’s greatest alternative systems of medicine and it is interesting to note that the number of cases of skin diseases discarded by the modern medical field being incurable when submit to Ayurveda for cure are reported to get considerable relief and in some cases they get completely relief without any recurrence. What is Ayurveda? “Ayu” means life and “Veda” means knowledge from the Vedic texts. This holistic science is the knowledge of complete balance of the body, mind and spirit, including emotions and psychology, on all levels. In Ayurveda the terminology for skin has been described as “Twak”, which is just like a mirror reflection and manifesting various type of inner abnormality or diseased condition. In Ayurveda major skin diseases have been classified under the heading of Kustha. Psoriasis is universal in occurrence which affects about 125 million people globally. It affects both males and females equally, adults and children too. In Ayurveda there is a skin disease described as “EkKushtha” which is not other than Psoriasis. It is also very important to know the effective management of Psoriasis through: Ayurveda herbs, detoxification treatment, diet management, life style management, stress management, yoga and meditation and research in ayurveda dermatology.