

Amniotic Band Syndrome : A Report One with Unique Clinical Presentation Shinta Pujatilusari, Departement of Obstetric and Gynaecology, Arifin Achmad Hospital, Pekanbaru – Indonesia.

Faculty of Medicine of Riau University.

ABSTRACT:

Amniotic band syndrome (ABS) is a rare congenital disorder which associated with physical abnormalities such as disruption, deformation, and malformations of organs which were intended to develop normally.¹ The commonest abnormalities usually involve the limbs and can range from simple constriction rings to complete amputation occurring at various levels.^{1,2} This case report is about a new born male baby who was normally delivered and he presented with ring-like constriction at over middle right lower limb and fusion (syndactyly) of left lower limb and right arm. This case reported the different diagnostic modalities which can be used for diagnose ABS, the risk factors, type of ABS, post natal ABS diagnose, and therapy ABS.

Keywords : Amniotic band syndrome, constriction rings.

Biography:

Shinta Pujatilusari has completed her PhD at the age of 25 years from Andhra University and postdoctoral studies from Stanford University School of Medicine. A premier Bio-Soft service organization. She has published more than 25 papers in reputed journals and has been serving as an editorial board member of repute.

Publication:

1. Preparing Counsellors For Malaysian Students' Acculturation
2. Translation And Validation Of The Malay Version Of Parent-Child Relationship Inventory (Pcri) To Malaysian Parents.
3. Knowledge And Practice Towards Childhood Immunization Among Parents In Rompin, Pahang, Malaysia.
4. Conceptual Framework Of School Management Excellence Model.
5. The Purpose Of Conversation Using Proverbs Among Tamil Language Teachers In National Type Tamil Primary Schools.

20th Annual Meet on pharmaceutical sciences, Bangkok, Thailand, October 21-22, 2020.

Abstract Citation: Shinta Pujatilusari, Amniotic Band Syndrome : A Report One with Unique Clinical Presentation, PHARMA MEET 2020, Bangkok, Thailand, October 21-22, 2020.