

How Age-Related Hearing Loss and Cognitive-Linguistic Processes Interact and Influence Free-Recall Memory Performance of Medical Instructions

Roberta M DiDonato^{1,2*} and Aimée M Surprenant¹

¹Cognitive Aging and Memory Lab, Memorial University of Newfoundland, Psychology, NL, Canada

²Speech Language Pathology, Medicine Department, Eastern Health, NL, Canada

Retraction Note:

The article entitled “How Age-Related Hearing Loss and Cognitive-Linguistic Processes Interact and Influence Free-Recall Memory Performance of Medical Instructions” has been accepted for publication in the Journal of Phonetics & Audiology. However, the article has been retracted from the journal upon author’s request. Journal apologize to the readers for any inconvenience caused.