To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing in support of the Journal of Autacoids for inclusion in PubMed Central's indexing system of medical journals. Although relatively young in years, the journal staff and the editorial board members of this online access journal have worked tirelessly to establish the journal's high professional standing by regularly releasing published articles that are on par or surpass articles in journals that PubMed Central currently indexes. I believe that indexing by the National Library of Medicine's PubMed Central would further enhance the quality and quantity of manuscripts submitted for publication to this journal. Therefore, I would strongly recommend that the Journal of Autacoids be indexed in the National Library of Medicine's PubMed Central.

Sincerely,
