Re: Recommendation letter regarding PubMed index

I am thrilled that the Journal of Nutrition and Food Sciences (JNFS) is under the evaluation for being indexed in PubMed. JNFS is an open access journal with quite fast review process. We have an excellent editorial board that promises all the submitted manuscripts would be comprehensively reviewed. This journal has been fairly cited in the literature and its articles are mostly of good quality. The main editors are all in very good standing with excellent reputations and good publication records, including many experts at various health- and disease-related areas. For example, I have worked at Nutrition and Cancer Prevention area since 1993 and my research activities have been funded by multiple NIH grants. Therefore, I strongly recommend indexing of JNFS in PubMed.

Please don't hesitate to contact me should you need further clarification.
