

Dear officers of pubmed,

I participate in editorial board member in biochemistry and pharmacology: open access since 2012. I already published two papers in this journal: 1) commentary, 2) original article. Especially, it took more than one year to prepare my original article (i.e. second paper) with my colleagues. I confirm that this work is one of my important research report and very useful for the broad area in neuroscience research.

From my experience for these publishing processes in biochemistry and pharmacology:open access, I think that the peer review process is valid and reviewer comments are very suitable.

Taking account of the quality of the recent published paper in biochemistry and pharmacology:open access, this journal is suitable to indexed in pubmed. I am sure to recommend it.

Yours Sincerely,

Yukio Imamura
